Reflection

From the beginning of the project I was a little slow when deciding what to do, but in the end I was able to come up with a topic about plans after college, this came to me when I thought about my roommates, they're all juniors, and even though they are juniors they are the only people that I know that are near to graduating college, so they would have to have come up with some sort of plan, and they might still be thinking about it, but this helps me understand the thought process of that plan. It was a bit rough to get the interview I have them but it was too late to turn them in for credit and that is on me so I do take responsibility for that, but I was able to send good questions in text form and I asked them to answer them as honestly as they could and to be somewhat through so I had enough to write about, luckily I was able to get that from them and I didn't need to change my topic at all. The project did take some out of me but it wasn't just this one I do have another programming class that I need to do as well as a drawing final that I also have to work on, these three do take a good amount of time and energy from me so it has been a little difficult at times but somehow I am managing them. I have learned a lot about this topic from my three roommates, in how some people might go into the world right out of college, how their thought process is on what they need to do and what needs to be done to achieve these goals. In the reality of it I didn't know what I would be going into when I thought about this project, I only really had a solid plan for what I was going to write about myself and that might not be my goal it could change during my time here, but I still didn't know what the others would say or if they even had some sort of plan for themselves. The things that I would do differently in the future is to one learn more about making websites and improve my skill so I can be more creative and two I would want to use more than just text, I decided to only use text with images of us cause they are busy with their own things and I didn't want to disturb them or get in the way of their work so I just decided to send a text with thoughtful questions and have them respond to me. In the end I did like my outcome even as we speak, I am trying to figure out how to make the color work with the images, so it looks good for the audience.